Introduction

UYDEL focused on its strategic objectives and has made good progress both in delivering strong results in 2014 and paving the way for improvement in 2015 and beyond. This year’s achievements have been realized through working in partnerships with both International and national stakeholders in improving the lives of marginalized children and youth.

National Perspective in relation to UYDEL targets and interventions

UYDEL choice of interventions and target groups are premised on practice wisdom that UYDEL has accumulated over 20 years of working with vulnerable young people. It is also informed by empirical evidence from national surveys including the Demographic Health Surveys, AIDS Indicator Survey and Intervention research conducted by credible institutions. In terms of the status of youths, the following information relates to our work.

- 11.2 million Ugandans are aged 10-24 years (National Population and Housing Census, 2014).
- 13% females and 12% males aged 15-24 have had sexual intercourse before age 15 (Uganda AIDS Indicator Survey, 2011).
- Nearly 78% of the population is aged 18-30 years (Uganda Demographic and Health Survey, 2011).
- Nearly half (48%) of all Ugandan orphans are a result of HIV/AIDS (Orphans and Vulnerable Children Situation Analysis Report, 2009)
- 18,000 children trapped in commercial sexual exploitation including child prostitution, child trafficking and pornography (Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children study, 2011).
• 50% drink 2 or more times per week and 73% drink alcohol with their friends (High Risk Behaviors among Vulnerable Youth Living in the Slums of Kampala, Uganda, 2014).

• Approximately 2.75 million children aged 5-17 years are engaged in economic activities and 51% of children are considered to be in hazardous child labour (UBOS-Uganda Household Survey, 2012).

• 64% of the unemployed persons are youths aged 18-30 years (Uganda Bureau of Statistics, 2012)

• Over 20,000 street children and slum youth majority from rural areas are estimated to be living in urban centers and cities of Uganda, with the highest concentration in Kampala city. The majority of these youths are boys, outnumbering girls by 7 to 3 (Kasirye, Light foot 2002)¹.

The Integrated Response Against Child Trafficking Project (IRACT)

This is a project funded by Terre des Hommes Netherlands through a consortium of four partners (FIDA-Uganda, ANPPCAN Uganda Chapter, Makerere University Social Work Department and UYDEL) in Greater Kampala, Moroto and Iganga districts from April 2014 to December 2015. This project aims at strengthening measures that raise national and regional consciousness and capacity to deal with child trafficking, reverse attitudes and practices that support the vice and extend direct service provision to the survivors and families of survivors. The project also aims at developing an evidence base on child trafficking, facilitate knowledge transfer and disseminate best practices by December 2015.

Under this project, UYDEL is responsible for achievement of Objective 3: To withdraw victims, provide interim care and re-integrate survivors, and extend support services to the affected families, of child trafficking in three targeted districts.
Major project achievements

- A total of 77 children (42 females and 35 males) were rescued from trafficking with majority in age group 16-17 years.
- A total of 77 children (42 females and 35 males) were provided with victim support services (counseling, psychosocial support, medical care, basic necessities, life skills sessions, business skills sessions, sports, music dance and drama sessions, family tracing, reintegration and resettlement with their families.
- Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) for assisting child victims of trafficking were developed and validated by the National Taskforce against Human trafficking.

Case study

Bakiita Josephine aged 17 years was a victim of child trafficking that was rescued by Kawempe police station. She was trafficked from Lalia –Nimule in northern Uganda by her elder sister’s friend with promises of school fees in return with domestic work. She was brought to Kampala in January 2014 and stayed in Kawempe with employer. The employer paid her for only one month (40,000/=) and failed to pay her for the remaining months. After 3 months, Josephine escaped from Kawempe from her employer so as to find means of going back home due to abuse and exploitation by the employer.

However she did not have transport to reach home and when she reached Arua park, the bus operators refused to take her because she did not even have contacts for her elder sister. As a result she remained in the park at night and was raped by 3 men. The next morning she decided to move back to her employer because nobody could help her. As she reached there, the abuse was doubled. After April 2014, she... found out that she had missed her menstruation periods and was pregnant. Her employer got to know about it and started chasing her away from home and even starving her. It was early this month in the second week of September that a police officer rescued her after observing her sleeping in the kitchen because the employer locked her house and went up country in paidha. She stayed at Kawempe police station for one week and later on 24th September 2014 she was withdrawn and brought to UYDEL.

She opened up and explained her case, so the doctor conducted medical examination and she was 4 months pregnant. He therefore recommended that Josephine be resettled back or referred to another organization for services in line with pregnancy. We conducted counseling but she was so emotional and traumatized and wanted to run away from the centre as she felt that she would not fit in the environment with other children. We proposed to refer her to Wakisa Ministries where they handle crisis pregnancy but she refused and opted to go back home and meet her sister for support. As a result therefore we respected her decision and so on 27th September she was taken to bus park and boarded a bus back to Nimule.
Kampala Young People’s Initiative Towards Drug Abuse Prevention In Slum Communities

UYDEL implemented a one year project supported by UNODC and DAPC entitled “Kampala young people’s initiative towards drug abuse prevention in slum communities”. The goal of this project is to empower 40 young people to become the initiators of the drug abuse prevention programmers’ in their slum communities and to make young people appreciate and apply the International Standards on drug use prevention. This project has been looking at young people who can be empowered to prevent and disseminate information on drug abuse prevention. The major purpose for the setting up of this peer-led project was due to the increased cases of drug use among the young people in most of Kampala slum communities. In order to ensure active and not passive participation of the peers, most of the activities under this project were based on the concept of “Participatory Inquiry in Practice” where young people, being considered as knowledgeable of what really happens in their lives and that of the people in the same age group, are trained in the running of the prevention activities with minimal guidance from social workers.

Major project achievements

• 40 young people were identified and selected to participate in the project implementation process. The project worked with the peer educators as role models in drug abuse prevention, peers participated in research, designing drug prevention messages and were trained on how to use face book as social media for communication and school outreaches.

• Young people are now knowledgeable and if equipped with the skills to fight the vice of drug abuse and they can extend the knowledge to others. Peers under the project are using interactive activities which they find better and fun with using social skills to prevent drugs among them and other young people.

- Peer educators participated in seven (7) secondary school outreach programmes to educate students about drug abuse prevention and ways of preventing violence in communities.

Above: Peer educators developing possible research questions about drug use at UYDEL Center
Anti Child Trafficking Project

This project was supported by United Nations Trust Fund on Contemporary Forms of Slavery to rescue, withdraw, rehabilitate and reintegrate children (12-17 years) who are victims of trafficking, abuse and exploitation. The project targeted children affected by abuse and exploitation in all its forms but particularly trafficking, commercial sexual exploitation, child labour and child sexual abuse.

The children were provided with direct assistance services using an integrated approach through assessment, temporary shelter, Psychosocial support and counseling, Treatment and care services, basic necessities, Indoor games and sports; Vocational skills training; Music dance and drama; Jewelry therapy; The Behavioral Change Sessions; family tracing and reunion with their parents.

Project results:

- 50 rescued child victims of trafficking were provided with friendly psycho-social support services (medical care, temporary shelter, counseling and livelihood skills training and reintegration with their families)

- Increased community awareness on child trafficking and exploitation through dissemination of IEC materials and community dialogues reaching out to community stakeholders and local leaders to effectively prevent, identify, report and support survivors of child trafficking.
